

Receive basic parameters from an electronic device in real time in response to detection of connection to the electronic device, wherein the basic parameters comprise a number of batteries provided in the electronic device

S101

Output a control signal to a voltage conversion circuit according to the basic parameters to enable the voltage conversion circuit to dynamically regulate a value of voltage output to the electronic device, wherein the value of voltage enables each of the batteries to be charged at a rated voltage

S102